

I do not think that financial institutions should be able to call on current account holders. Financial institutions are now placing quotas on employees requiring them to call so many customers/members for cross sell opportunities. Basically, any call is a sales call. One in particular is FORUM Credit Union. Their call is merely to get members to open more services with them to increase accounts per individual. They push loans the most. They should not be allowed to do this!!! People appreciate their privacy and this is a direct violation of it!!! Do NOT pass this law. It would go against what Steve Carter has fought to protect. Thank you Mr. Carter for implementing the No Call List! It has been a blessing!
